高二英语阶段考试（一）读后续写
（邻里和解）

段落一：It seemed that he was about to drop it.

一、内心的纠结：

1. I was torn (纠结) between helping him and pretending not to see.
2. For a moment I stood still,torn (纠结) between kindness and anger.
3. My heart battled (挣扎) with itself: help him, or leave him to struggle?

其它：

4. Seeing his struggle, I hesitated (犹豫) about whether to help him or not. But our angry shouts and his icy eyes filled (充斥) my head.
5. Hesitant (犹豫不决地), I debated (纠结) in my mind about whether to help him or not. But our past arguments and his icy stares popped (闪现) into my head.
6. My feet stayed glued (粘住) to the grass. Help him? After all he did? A flood of memories hit (冲击) me—shouting matches, slammed doors, his icy eyes.
7. I paused, giving him a sympathetic (同情的) look. Should I help him? I wondered. However, those heated quarrels and his cold flashed (闪过) across my mind. Maybe he deserved to be left alone.

二、决心帮助他：

1. That was when (当) the box nearly fell and my better side won. Before (还没等) I knew it, I running toward him. "Careful!" I grabbed (抓住) the box's edge. My voice (声音) sounded strange.
2. But as I watched his arms tremble (颤抖) under the box's weight, something in me softened (软化). I sighed (叹气) and hurried (快步走) over. “Need a hand?” I asked, avoiding his eyes (目光).

三、他的反应（惊讶)：

1. He froze (僵住). Surprise flashed (闪过) across his face. A slow nod followed.
2. He blinked, mouth (嘴巴) half-open, then gave a small nod. / His eyes widened (睁大) in pure surprise.
3. For a split second his mouth (嘴巴) formed a silent “oh,” and after a hesitant pause, he shifted the weight toward me.
4. Mr. Thompson looked startled (震惊), managing a reluctant nod.

四、衔接句：

1. Side by side, we managed to carry the heavy box into his hallway,silent (沉默) the whole time.
2. Together with some effort, we carried(搬动) the heavy box inside. Not a single word was spoken.

段落二：As we were standing in his living room, Mr. Thompson broke the ice.

一、他的道歉（惭愧)：

1. “I… I’m sorry,” he stammered(结结巴巴地说), staring at (盯着) the floor. “My cancer treatment... it changed me.”
2. “I… I’m sorry,” he stammered(结结巴巴地说), eyes fixed (紧盯) on the carpet. “I’ve been under a lot of stress lately, but that’s no excuse.”
3. He lowered(低下) his head,voice (声音) barely above a whisper (低语). “I’m so sorry that I made your life hard.”

二、我的反应（安慰)：

1. At/Hearing (听到) his words, I couldn’t help reaching (伸手) out to pat(轻拍) his shoulder. “Maybe we both made mistakes. We could try to be better neighbors,” I replied, my own voice softer (更柔和) than I expected.
2. My expression relaxed / my face softened (缓和) and my voice grew gentle (温和). “Don’t worry about the past. If you need anything, I’m right next door.”

三、他的反应（感激)：

1. He looked up, the usual annoyance in his eyes melting (消散) into gratitude.
2. Relief washed（涌现) over his face, and a grateful smile appeared.
3. His shoulders sank（垂下) with a quiet “Thank you,” the tension fading（消退) from his eyes.

四、主题句（照应文章里的线索)：

1. The next morning, his car was parked perfectly in his own driveway. The familiar sounds of lawnmowers and children’s laughter（笑声) floated in the air. For the first time（次), the neighborhood felt more like home again.
2. After that talk, the barking softened（减弱), the driveway stayed clear, and our street felt friendly（友好) again.